Whighall, November 14, 1780.

COPY of a letter from Sir Henry Clinton, K. B. to Lord George Germaine, one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, received by Captain St George, one of Sir Henry Clinton's Aides de Camp, who arrived from New York in the Fortune frigate.

New York, Oct. 12. 1780.

In my separate letter of yesterday's date, I had the honour of informing your Lordship, that the American Major-General Arnold had quitted the rebel service, and joined the King's standard; and I at the same time gave your Lordship a circumstantial detail of the reasons that induced him to take this step, as well as of the unfortunate failure of a plan, which I had the most sanguine hopes, if carried into execution, would have been productive of the greatest good consequences to his Majesty's service, but which terminated most fatally for Major Andre, my Adjutant-General, who, being taken prisoner, was tried by a Board of Rebel General Officers, and condemned by their sentence to suffer death; which sentence was ordered by the rebel General Washington to be carried into execution upon this unhappy gentleman on the 1st instant. I sincerely lament the melancholy fate of this officer, who was a very valuable assistant to me, and promised to be an honour to his country, as well as an ornament to his profession.

I had the honour to transmit to your Lordship, in my dispatch marked 104, a copy of the instructions I proposed giving to Major-General Lefevre, whom I had appointed to command the expedition to Chesapeake, in order that your Lordship might be informed as to the principal objects of it.

This expedition will certainly fail the first favourable wind, the troops having been embarked for some days, and every necessary arrangement made for that purpose.

Your Lordship will receive herewith a state of the troops under my command of the 1st instant, together with a distribution of the same as they stood on the 6th of that month.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect,

Your Lordship's most obedient and most humble servant,

H. CLINTON.

Admiralty Office, Nov. 14, 1780.

CAPTAIN BRISBANE, late commander of his Majesty's ship the Alcide, arrived at this Office yesterday, with dispatches from Admiral Sir George Brydges Rodney and Vice-Admiral Arbuthnot, giving an account of the arrival of the former at New York, on the 1st of September last, with eleven sail of line-of-battle ships and four frigates, and of his having taken upon him the command of his Majesty's ships on that station.

Extract of a letter from Vice-Admiral Arbuthnot to Mr Stephens, dated on board the Royal Oak, at sea, Oct. 17. 1780.

HAVING accidentally fallen in with the Fortunee, under the orders of Admiral Sir George Rodney to proceed to England, I avail myself of the opportunity to acquaint you, for their Lordships information, that I put to sea with this squadron from Gardner's Bay on the 10th instant, intending to cruise between the east end of Long-island and Nantucket Shoals; but, on the 14th, falling in with the transports and victuallers under the escort of the Hyzena, (from which the Adamant had separated a few days) I judged it expedient, on account of the numbers of rebel privateers fitted out to intercept it, to see them off Sandy Hook, which they entered yesterday.

I am now proceeding to resume the cruising station before mentioned.

The Chevalier de Ternay and his squadron yet remain at Rhode-island.

The squadron under my command is in the best order and ready for any service.

Six privateers, mounting twenty guns, and manned by upwards of 700 seamen, have been, since my last, captured from the rebels by his Majesty's cruisers, and carried into New York: And this day, after a chase from the squadron, by signal, of six hours, the Culloden came up with and took the privateer ship Washington, of Boston, mounting twenty-six-pounders and 120 men.

On the 30th ult. the Pearl, being off Bermuda, fell in with the French frigate l'Esperance, of twenty-eight twelve-pounders, which, after an action of two hours, struck to the superior gallantry and good conduct of Captain Montague. The prize arrived at New York two days ago.

For the particulars of the above-mentioned action, see the following extract of Captain George Montague's letter to Admiral Sir George Extract of a letter from Capt. Geo. Montague, of his Majesty's ship Pearl, to Sir Geo. Brydges Rodney.

ON the 30th of September, we fell in with a French ship, who engaged us close for two hours, and maintained a running fight for two hours and a half more, when she struck. She proved to be l'Eperance, from Cape Francois, bound to Bourdeaux, a frigate belonging to the King, but loaded by the merchants, and having only a letter of marque, mounting 26 twelve-pounders on her main deck, and 2 six-pounders on her quarter-deck, with 173 men. She had 20 men killed and 24 wounded. I think it a justice due to the captain to say, that he defended his ship with great bravery. The Pearl had 6 men killed, and 10 wounded; among the former was First Lieutenant Foulke of Marines, and the latter Mr Dunbar, Master.

The very cool and determined behaviour of the officers and ship's company merits my most sincere acknowledgments.

HOUSE OF LORDS, Monday, Nov. 13.

This day, in the House of Lords, as soon as the Lord Chancellor had seated himself on the wool-wack, the Lord President presented a petition from the Right Honorable George Finner, Earl of Pomfret, which was read by the Clerk, and set forth, 'That ever since he fell into the displeasure of that honourable House, he had been deeply afflicted that he should, in any manner whatsoever, incur the displeasure of that House, of which he had the honour to be a member. His Lordship, therefore, prayed them to take into their consideration the deep sense he had of justly meriting their Lordships' displeasure, imploring the grace and favour of the House, to forgive his faults, and to restore him to their good opinion, and the effects of it.'

The petition was signed—POMFRET.

A motion was then made, to take the same into consideration on Wednesday, which, upon the question put, was agreed to by the House, and their Lordships ordered to be summoned.

A proper officer from the Customs laid before the House an account of prohibited East-India goods, exported from 1776 to 1777.

Mr Pope's Naturalization bill was presented, and read a first time.

The Duke of Buccleugh took the oath for the first time since the new Parliament.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, Monday, Nov. 13.

In the House of Commons, as soon as the Speaker had taken the Chair, Sir Grey Cooper moved for the second reading of the bill for empowering His Majesty to seize upon, and keep in custody, all persons suspected of having committed treason on the high seas, and in the Colonies. Mr Baker objected to it on the same ground he had opposed it on its first reading. It was, however, agreed to without a division.

Lord Mahon called the attention of the House to a matter respecting the Dutch. On the 2d of August last, six Dutch traders, his Lordship stated, had been pursued by some English men of war into the Island of St Martin, near St Eustatia, and demanded of the Governor; who, upon asking the English commander from whom he had his orders, was told, from Sir George Rodney, who as readily said, he had given them in consequence of instructions from home. The Governor of St Martin's hesitating, the English commander threatened to batter down the place, and the Dutch traders were in consequence delivered to him. All the noble Lord meant to deduce from this was, that Ministry ought by no means to hazard a quarrel with the Dutch, who are at this time the only ally Great Britain has.

Lord George Germaine observed, that nothing, on our part, had been done to insult the Dutch. It was true, he said, that some ships of ours had pursued some Dutch traders into St Martin's; but that it had been under a supposition that they were American vessels. This, his Lordship said, he thought it proper to communicate for the information of the House; not that he held himself bound, as one of his Majesty's Ministers, to explain any matter that came to his knowledge, whenever any gentleman should chuse to call upon him for that purpose. The Dutch traders, his Lordship further observed, were given up, as soon as it was discovered that they were not Americans.

Mr Hartley endeavoured, in a long speech, to impress the House with an idea of reconciling matters with America; and gave notice, that he should, on Wednesday or Thursday, move an address to his Majesty, to consist of two parts; the one, that the House were ready to give his Majesty every necessary support for the prosecution of the war; and the other, to recommend a peace to be immediately made with America, by offering her such terms as might be thought necessary and equitable.

Mr Adam then, in a long dilatory manner, took notice of an advertisement that had appeared in the news-papers, from the Westminster Committee, setting forth, that an attack (alluding to the duel he had with him) had been made upon Mr Fox, and that it was necessary every care should be taken to prevent his from the like danger in future. The honourable gentleman rallied Mr to their leader, wrote him a note, informing him that he would come and dine with him the next day, in company with some officers, whom he named, intending to go round his posts, and see that every thing was in proper order. Arnold, who had heard of Major Andree's mischance, with great presence of mind wrote word back, that he should be exceedingly happy to see the General, would expect him the next day, and that Mrs Arnold would think her table honoured with his presence. The instant he dispatched the messenger with this reply, he stepped into a whale-boat, and got safe to New-York, from whence he is gone second in command under Brigadier Leslie, with a great force, up the Chesapeake.

General Vaughan's dispatches from the West Indies say, in general terms, that all things remained quiet, and that there was no news whatever of the French fleet. Colonel Lucius Ferdinand Coary, and the Hon. Capt. Waldegrave, youngest son of Earl Waldegrave, were both dead.

Letters from Jamaica say, that every thing remained in a state of tranquility there; that they had no apprehensions at present of that island being attacked by either French or Spaniards; that a disorder was broke out amongst the Spaniards (both sailors and soldiers) which daily carried off numbers of them, &c.

The India Company have received advice from Bengal, by the way of Holland, that a grand-secret expedition is now fitting out in the Ganges, and is supposed to be destined either against Mauritius or the Manillas. They have the most sanguine hopes of success from this expedition, as a very great force, both naval and military, has been collected, and they have even pressed the seamen from the East India ships.

As the following may serve to throw a proper light on the real disposition of the Dutch towards this country, we give it here as it is extracted from a letter dated Hague, Nov. 1. 1780:

" His Highness the Stadholder gave the following notice, on the 20th ult. to the Assembly of their Noble and High Mightinesses:

" Noble and High Mightinesses: The Chevalier Yorke, his Britannic Majesty's Ambassador, having delivered to me, in the name of his Royal Master, the papers hereto annexed, found among those of Laurens, late President of Congress, and now a State-prisoner in London, I thought it my duty to lay them before your Noble and High Mightinesses, that you may take such resolutions on them as to your enlightened wisdom may seem best and necessary. I cannot, however, that I never had the least knowledge of any deliberation, much less of any power or authority given to enter into a treaty with the colonies of North America.—

" After thanking his Highness for his unweared and paternal care, it was taken into consideration, that the papers alluded to were the result of a private correspondence, between one of the commissioners of the American Congress and a Merchant of Amsterdam: Resolved, That the independence of America, which is acknowledged by no one power in Europe except France, hath never been so by their Mightinesses. Resolved, That the above notification shall be sent to the Burgomasters and Regents of Amsterdam, in order to obtain the necessary light concerning the correspondence alluded to, tending to make some overtures concerning a treaty of commerce to be set on foot between the Republic of the United Provinces and North America.

" In consequence of this intimation, the Burgomasters and Regents of Amsterdam delivered, on the 24th ult. their answer, to the following purport:

" That what had passed between their eldest pensionary, and the Merchant alluded to on the one part, and the Americans on the other, was done by their unanimous direction: But that such an overtire, for a treaty of commerce, was built only on eventual circumstances, and to take place solely in case the Independence of America should be acknowledged by the British government, and that such a step had been taken only to prevent the town of Amsterdam being foreclosed from trading with the said Colonies, by some exclusive treaty. That they think themselves authorized in having done what, in justice to their interest and welfare, it was their duty to do. They conclude by saying, that they expect their Noble and High Mightinesses will lose no time in publishing to the world that they are perfectly satisfied with the above declaration; a matter on which the said Burgomasters and Regents beg leave to insist the more strongly, as several disagreeable reports have reached them concerning this affair, and conclusions drawn from it which a member of a free state should by no means be liable to, it being their unanimous determination to oppose the influence of such rumours, in an efficacious manner, and by every ways and means in their power, consonant with strict propriety."

On Saturday the Attorney General made a motion in the Court of King's Bench, that the Sheriff of Middlesex should be ordered to summon a jury for the trial of Lord George Gordon, and that the pannel, together with a copy of the indictment, should be sent to his Lordship; which motion being assented to, Mr Erskine, on the part of his Lordship, moved, that he should have the liberty of nominating his own counsel, under the act of 7th of King William, and that Mr Kenyon and himself be accordingly admitted his Lordship's advocates. Mr Justice Buller asked if it was usual for such motions to be made, but by prisoners in person, at the bar of the Court; but Lord Mansfield observed, that if Mr Attorney General had no objection, the Court would not be disinclined to grant the motion in its present form. Mr Wallace declining any opposition, it was accordingly admitted. Mr Erskine then moved to know, if Mr Kenyon, being a King's counsel, would be permitted to plead for his Lordship without the Royal licence? To which Lord Mansfield replied, that he (Mr Erskine) knew as well as the Court, that no such permission could be granted but by the King's authority. His Lordship observed, that the Court had not the power of dispensing with the oath taken by the King's advocates; and that the licence, therefore, must be obtained at the proper office.

The following, among many others, are subpoena'd as witnesses upon the trial of Lord George Gordon, on the validity of whose evidence the Grand Jury found the bill against his Lordship:

John Cator, M. P. Counsellor Anstruther; the Justices Wright and Hay; Mr Chamberlayne, Solicitor of the Treasury; Jealous, Parrott, and Macnamas, three of the late Sir John Fielding's men; Barwell of the House of Commons; Pearson of ditto; Macray, a chairman.

The above list may be depended on as authentic.

EDINBURGH.

Extrait of a letter from London, November 14.

" The House of Commons met to-day; and having received the report of yesterday on voting the 90,000 £, and transacting several other ordinary matters, adjourned till to-morrow, when the whole House will resolve itself into a Committee of Supply.

" Lord George Gordon was not brought up to-day to Westminster Hall, as expected."

The London Papers, brought by this night's post, contain General Arnold's address to the inhabitants of North America, in which he assigns the reasons which induced him to desert their cause, and throw himself upon the protection of Great-Britain. It is dated New-York, October 7. and shall appear in our next.

Last Monday morning, the house of Stoneybank, near Musselburgh, possessed by Mr Kemp merchant in this city, was observed to be on fire. The wind blew very strong from S. W. to which the house is much exposed. The first noise the family had was a noise in the chimney, about the joisting of the first floor, which burst out at the top of the vent, when every thing again was quiet, without the appearance of any farther danger; but, about an hour and a half after, they were again alarmed with the smell of burnt timber, when the roof was observed to be on fire, and burnt with such rapidity that the main body of the house was consumed without a possibility of saving it. Most of the furniture was saved.

Died at Stirling, on Sunday the 12th current, Mr Robert Menzies, minister of Comrie; a gentleman of pious but liberal sentiments in his public character, and much and justly esteemed for his probity, candour, and friendly dispositions in his private.

At last Quarterly Meeting of the Royal College of Physicians, Dr Thomas Gillespie, of this city, was received a Fellow.

On Tuesday, the Right Honourable the Earl of Lauderdale was unanimously re-chosen Rector of the University of Glasgow, for the ensuing year.

On Wednesday last, the Lord Provost and Magistrates came to a resolution to purchase immediately, and lodge in the town's granaries, one thousand bolls of meal, for the purpose of selling it out to the poor inhabitants at a reduced price, in case that necessary article should rise during the winter. Such a wise, considerate, and humane resolution cannot fail of giving universal satisfaction. The oat-meal has been rising for several market-days, and is now got up to eleven pence the peck.

We are informed, from good authority, that the Synod of Merse and Teviotdale have overtured to the ensuing General Assembly to make a temporary act, prohibiting all Presbyteries from receiving young men on trials who have not studied divinity at some University; and have determined to write to all the Synods in Scotland to take this matter under serious deliberations, and endeavour to suggest some effectual method for preventing the decision of last Assembly, on this subject, from becoming a precedent. A letter to this purpose was received by the Synod of Lothian.

Wednesday afternoon, in the Graftenmarkt, a boy about fifteen years of age was thrown from a horse, and a number of other horses having rode over him, it being the throng of the market, he was so much bruised that he died the same night.

We hear from Banff, that, last week, two Flushing cutters, loaded with tea and spirits, ran ashore near that place great part of their loadings. Three Custom-house Officers seized 168 boxes of fine tea, and a quantity of spirits, which was safely lodged in the Custom-house of Banff.

The Greenock, Archibald McLarty, from the West Indies for Clyde, foundered at sea. The crew are all saved. The St Andrew, Scott, from Jamaica, with sugar and rum; and the Blandford, Troop, from ditto with ditto, are safe arrived in Clyde. [See Custom-house List of Shipping.]

The Eliza, Forrester, is arrived at Jamaica, from Halifax.

In the postscript of a letter from Captain Kyd, received on Thursday, dated the 14th instant, he says, that the privateer, mentioned in Provost Jopp's letter to the Lord Provost, inserted in our last, was discovered standing in upon Girdleane, at about four miles distance, with the wind northerly.

The Lord Provost, immediately upon receipt of this intelligence, gave notice to Captain Collins of the Alfred, then lying in Leith Roads.

A Correspondent says, that great benefit may often arise to a Society by the attendance of a single member, as may appear by the following matter of fact:

At a meeting of the Merchant Company, on Wednesday last, most of the members of a certain side, supposing that no more motions were to be made by the other party, left the meeting. After this, however, Mr Lauchlan stood up, and said he had a motion to make, when, pulling a piece of paper out of his pocket, he desired the Clerk to read it. It was to the following purport:

" That the Master of the Company, with Messrs Stodart and Elder, be empowered to meet with the other incorporations and inhabitants, to concert such measures as may be judged most proper to preserve the revenue of the city from being misappropriated, and to defend the rights of the community from being infringed on by any person or persons whatever; and to report."

This motion was seconded, and Mr Stodart observing that there seemed to be none to oppose it, was just going to be entered in the minutes, when Mr Paterson got up, and after exclaiming in the strongest manner against the inconsistency of these gentlemen who had been talking against the town's funds being wasted needlessly, and yet were going, by this motion, to spend the funds, appropriated for the poor of this Company, upon law-suits; he insisted, that the motion should not pass in that form.

Some of the members declared, that they did not mean to take any of the funds of the Company for that use.

Mr Paterson insisted, that it should be declared so in the motion, otherwise he would give it every opposition in his power; and was going to protest against it, when Mr Elder got up, and asked Mr Paterson, if this added to it,

" but the above to be done without incurring any expense to the public funds of the Company," would please him, which he agreeing to, it accordingly passed unanimously.

Mr Hunter Blair moved, That, as this Company, lost more than one hundred pounds sterling by not applying for their charter, some years ago, through Sir Laurence D'Orsay, their then representative in Parliament, who promised to pay the whole expence of that application, the gentlemen who opposed his being employed should indemnify the charitable fund of this Company, by a subscription equal thereto.

This motion was supported by one vote only.

Copy of a letter from Mr James Macritchie, dated Whitby, Nov. 12. 1780.

" I now have the disagreeable news to acquaint you, that the brigantine Margaret of Queensferry, John Kirk master, myself owner and supercargo, is totally lost, ship and cargo. On the 5th instant, she was within five or six miles of the Island of May, with the wind then at E. S. E. being then about ten at night, when we were suddenly attacked by a most dreadful storm of wind from the N. W. with dreadful showers of hail, then in company with a brig and a sloop. We then got the ship's head to the north-east quarter, had one boy washed over board, the vessel lying to under a close tight main-sail and fore-sail, the sea making a clear passage over the vessel, the gale still increasing all that night; and next day, the 6th, about ten at night, the boat washed off the deck, and about midnight shipped a sea that broke down the main hatches, carried timber heads and rails and stanchions all overboard, started the pumps up, broke the gunnels and ship's quarter, that she became a perfect wreck, and in one hour was full of water and unmanageable. About 2 o'clock on the 7th two of our men died on deck. About 7 in the morning saw the Yorkshire coast. Bore away with the ship in the best manner we could, thinking to save our lives, ship, and cargo. About six in the evening of said day, got close in with the land; made different signals for assistance, but got none that night; then was drove off the land, and not the smallest appearance of assistance. Another of our men died, and all the rest of us in a most miserable condition. About ten next day, discovered a sail coming from the land to our assistance, which proved to be a smack; about twelve noon she got close by the wreck, and sent a boat which carried all that was in life on board the smack: The people on board the smack saved the sails, anchors, part of the running rigging, and part of the best cable; and about midnight, on the 9th, parted with the wreck, it then blowing off the land, that they could not go any more on board of her; she then was five or six leagues off the land, and now think she is broken up, as she has not been seen since we left her."
